Prelude: Social Scenes

Robot

You approach Atom Eve and try once again to recruit her to join the Guardians of the Globe, promising that you'll minimize her rotations with Rex Splode to make things more comfortable for her.

or You fly around the park's perimeter, scanning for threats and finding none. Below, you spot a clearly lost child crying for their parents. You land and try to help reunite them.

Monster Girl

You ask Robot to meet you at the start of the bike path so you don't have to wait alone. He arrives very late, and you chide him for being able to track a thousand things at once – except the time.

or You wander close to some nearby playground equipment, and several children eagerly and persistently ask you to come play with them on the jungle gym.

Rex Splode

Across the park's central pond, you catch sight of Atom Eve and wave. You jog along the pond's edge to try to catch up to her to smooth things over and propose a truce.

or You track down the GDA's public relations officer Alyssa Phillips, who told you to attend the event, to ask her how long you have to stay to "check the box."

Atom Eve

You find Mark Grayson – attending the memorial out of costume for obvious reasons – and try to put him at ease, reassuring him that none of what happened a year ago was his fault.

or You wait in a long line at a food truck for a street taco. A few people ahead of you insist that a superhero should be allowed to cut to the front – while others strongly disagree.

Bulletproof

You recognize Monster Girl from the recent Guardians of the Globe tryouts and ask what it's like to be on the team before asking her why she believes you didn't make the cut.

or You linger around an art exhibit at the memorial with several paintings, including one of yours. You hear people praise yours as their favorite, until someone dismisses it as "pretentious," sparking a debate you join without letting them know it's your work.

Knockout

You spot Robot and flag him down to ask whether the Guardians of the Globe plan to open any additional roster spots in the near future.

or You notice a group of teenagers picking on one of their own. You step in, verbally rebuking them until they stop and leave, while reassuring the person who was being bullied.

Kid Thor

You attempt to nonchalantly describe your idea of the perfect date to Knockout and ask her to spill the details of her own ideal night out on the town.

or You twirl your hammer to impress a group of children that have gathered around you to gawk at it and regale them with a story about one of your exploits.